SATI

Grades, extracurricular activities, and your personal motivation are excellent indicators of your ability to succeed in college. The SAT I examination, however, remains a primary tool used by colleges to select their incoming classes. The Academy has no doubt that a well-conceived and professionally taught prep course can assist students in improving their SAT I scores.

The SAT I exam has changed considerably. Starting on March 12, 2005, the test now includes a writing section including an essay, reading passages of varying lengths and 3 full years of high school Math. Word analogies have been eliminated.

Knowledge of test taking techniques and the dynamics of the new test are just as important as knowledge of subject matter! The course provides confidence and self-esteem, intensive review of relevant subject matter and motivation for students to explore colleges during their junior year in high school.

Quality SAT I Prep

Our instructors are licensed and very experienced. They live in the local community. Our course is a local alternative to higher priced and less personal courses provided by large national and regional chains.

The course is sponsored by and given at King of King's Lutheran Church of Middletown, a well-known and respected institution in the community. Over 350 students have successfully completed the course already.
